

Film and photos from Mbale Tigers

Last Updated Wednesday, 13 June 2012

Mbale Tigers Table Tennis Club in Mbale, Uganda, is crowded by enthusiastic youth. The club has a deeper goal: to cover school fees through winnings, to nourish the mind in a place away from poverty-related problems, and to build confidence in the village children.

Amina Kibone, Aisha Nambozo and Moses Pharao are three of them. Their talents have brought free school tuition and a higher standard of living. The main goal is to start up a table tennis academy in Bududa area outside Mbale, where players shall be given education and training for free. Today 2000 players have a chance to play freely. It's a cooperation between Mbale Tigers and the Swedish NGO called Twiga.

PHOTOS

FILM